My role is the Head of Equality and the Welsh Language. I use my knowledge of Welsh language and equality legislation to help departments within Powys Teaching University Health Board. I assist them in tackling health inequalities and by ensuring that Welsh speakers have access to the health board services in their chosen language.

It's different every day; I get the opportunity to meet people from across the organisation and I provide help in a lot of different ways.

My academic background is in Welsh literature and translation. I have worked in many different sectors, in Welsh to start with but more recently in equality as well. I never expected to be working in health. And I've been working in the NHS for 4.5 years now. I like that the NHS helps everyone, whatever their background or identity.
